Back cover

How can a man make others believe that he loves madly a woman and then do everything to emotionally disintegrate her and psychologically?

How can he be pleased and enjoy the pain they feel unfortunates who fall in love with him?

How can he rationally and meticulously program the destruction of another human being without feeling any sense no guilt, no compassion and no remorse?

A narcissist pervert can and does prove it in this interview issued to Cinzia Mammoliti, frontline criminologist from years in the study of these diabolical subjects, which she decides to take a journey into the mind of a serial sadist.

A long, raw, intense, at times shocking dialogue that confronts a truth that is difficult for everyone to accept: the cruelty exists, it is much more diffuse than we think, but especially most of the time it comes from the people we love and by which we think we should be loved.

About the author
